As Shakespeers Said.

"Sweet Will Shakespeare's" influence is still with us, and many of the phrases which he used have become part of our language. Among these phrases are: "Bag and baggage," "dead as a doornail," "hit or miss," "love is blind," "seiling for a song," "wide world," "fast and loose," "unconsidered trifles," "westward ho!" "familiaricuses," "misery makes strange bedfeleven," "birds of a feather," "Greek to me," "that's flat," "packing a jury," "mother wit," "killed with kindness," "mum" for silent, "ill wind that blows no good," "wild goose chase," "scareerows," "row of pins," "viva voce," "give and take," "sold," "your cake is dough." Shakespeare was the first author to use the words "man in the moon" or mention the potato or use the term "evesore" for appoyance.

In a Japanese School.

In "A Wanderer's Trail" A. L. Rodger, the author, says: "In Tokye I gained my living as an English teacher. This task of teaching English in Japan is not a very difficult one. It is, however, a rather tiring occupation. The one qualification necessary is tact. Discipline in Japanese schools is very lax. It is no exridiculously great. Should a class dislike a teacher they either boycott him school authorities and demand his dismissal. And the almost inevitable result is the teacher's dismissal! To the efficiency of a teacher is a full classroom. Needless to mention. I was an efficient, for my class room was always full. That is why I say the only qualification needed was tact."

Wonderful Linen Breeches. A. O. Bunnell of Dansville has in his possession a petition which was circulated in his village in 1878 and signed by well known people, remarks the Utica Press. The petition appeals to breeches. It seems that this gentleman and the citizens decided to appeal to breeches "in order that the parched up earth, low streams, dry wells and cisney graciously consented to don his linen breeches, and on the original paper in Mr. Bunnell's possession is this indorsement: "Rain commenced falling the same night."

hats when going aboard a naval vessel it may be said that, though commonly called a "salute to the deck," the salute in question is really a salute to the flag. For instance, at night on reaching the quarter deck or upon leaving it no salute is required, as the flag is, of course, not flying. The fact that this salute is rendered upon reaching the quarter deck from below or when coming on board and upon leaving the quarter deck, as when leaving the ship, is probably responsible for its having been known as a salute to the deck; but, as has been stated, it is really a salute to the flag. Men should when rendering it stop, stand erect and face the flag.-Philadelphia Press.

said a captain who commanded a ship on which Robert Louis Stevenson sailed. "The ship had broken her shaft and was delayed. He cheered everybody up by telling funny stories that were better coming offhand from his lips than most literary men could write if they worked over them for weeks. He knew, too, that it was only a question of a short time before he would die of consumption and that he could never again go home for more than a brief visit. It was simply wonderful what a difference that one man made among the passengers, and I guess almost all of us would gladly spend the aggeration to say that the student vir- time to make port under sail, with machinery disabled, if we could have a Spurgeon was Noncommittal. The Rev. W. Williams, in his "Personal Reminiscences of C. H. Spurgeon," tells an anecdote concerning the great preacher as a smoker. Some gentleman wrote to Mr. Spurgeon, saying: "He had heard he smoked and could not believe it was true. Would Mr. Spurgeon write and tell if it really was so?" The reply was sent as follows: "Dear -, I cultivate my flowers and burn my weeds. Yours truly,

C. H. Spurgeon."

England's First Scientist. The first great English scientist was Roger Bacon, who died in 1294. The exact date of his birth is unknown, but it is believed that this year marks the seven hundredth anniversary. He was persecuted and condemned and much of his work destroyed, so that the extent of his discoveries cannot be definitely known. It is certain that he was centuries ahead of his ignorant and credulous times in chemistry, mechanics and mathematics. Branded as a magician, he was thrown into prison. From 1277 until a short time before his death Bacon was immured in a filthy cell. He is said to have invented the camera obscura, the air pump and the diving bell, and he was acquainted with the uses of optical lenses and the nature of gunpowder, although the projectile power of gunpowder appears not to have been discovered until the fol-
